

Dear FCC:

I am a resident of Indiana which has recently instituted a "No Call Law" to protect us from unwanted telephone solicitations. I have heard that the federal government is considering legislation which could preempt and weaken our state law. The Indiana law has been very successful and very popular among citizens of our state. It has dramatically reduced unsolicited calls from 12 a week to less than 2 calls per week.

This is what our citizens want. I strongly urge the government not to pass any legislation which would preempt our popular and successful law.

Sincerely yours,

James S. Touloukian
